#ESPARTSCULTURE

Kaya Nyungar Boodja,

The Esperance Nyungar people live in this country. Kepa (water) Kurl (boomerang) is the local Nyungar name for Esperance, which means: "where the waters lie like a boomerang".

Fundamental to Nyungar identity and culture is connection to country.

Esperance Nyungar people feel a deep sense of responsibility towards their country (boodja) and everything in it, the landscapes, seascapes, plants, animals, rocks, water, cultural materials, and cultural heritage.

Across the Esperance region there is archaeological evidence of the Nyungar people having adapted to, and shaped the natural environment for at least 13,000 years.

Today, Nyungar Elders hold, and pass on to their children, complex knowledge about how to hunt, fish and move through this country in a sustainable way.

Following recognition of Native Title rights in 2014, Esperance Tjaltjraak Native Title Aboriginal Corporation was established. Tjaltjraak was chosen (pronounced Dul-u-rak) as a reference to the local blue mallee gum (Eucalyptus pleurocarpa). It is said that the distribution of blue mallee gum corresponds directly to Esperance Nyungar territory.

In 2018 Esperance Tjaltjraak launched its Ranger Program and employed a Community Liason Officer. In addition to the work of caring for Country, these initiatives also support a number of community partnerships focussed on sharing Nyungar cultural heritage through language, story, visual arts and performance.

ESPERANCE'S ARTS & CULTURE TRAIL NOTES

Esperance Community Arts is pleased to present the Esperance Arts & Culture Trail, a self-guided tour of arts & culture in the region. The trail provides a snapshot of the significant contribution that arts and cultural activities make to the life of our community.

Additional listings are available on the website: www.esperanceartsandculturetrail.com.au
This online resource will continue to grow as new listings are added.

The variety of art forms and number of participants included in this project are a testament to the importance of arts and culture in Esperance. These listings also build a picture of the economic value of local arts and cultural activities.

This new trail expands on the Esperance Arts Trail established over ten years ago by Esperance Community Arts. It is designed to link in with the bigger Goldfields–Esperance Arts and Culture Trail currently being developed by Artgold.

The Esperance Arts & Culture Trail has come to fruition thanks to the work of project manager Alana Ostle and designer Kate Dansey, and with financial support from the Australian Government's Building Better Regions Fund.

We hope you enjoy discovering new people and places. Please consider passing this booklet on to someone else to extend its use when you have finished with it.

OPENING TIMES & ACCESSIBILITY

Please phone ahead to confirm opening dates, times, facilities and access.

MAP MARKERS

Each listing has a number correlating to a map markers in the back of the book, however more detailed maps may be needed to locate some venues.

Access to arts and culture for everyone...

“Through partnerships, Esperance Community Arts creates opportunities for engagement in arts and cultural activities” - Esperance Community Arts Mission

Esperance Community Arts supports access to arts and culture for everyone. The Esperance Arts and Culture Trail project reflects this goal by gathering together information about the wide variety of related activities and opportunities available in our community. This booklet, and the accompanying website, begin to capture the diversity and extent of arts and cultural activity in the region. And we know this is not a complete list.

In this sense the ‘Trail’ is so much more than a set of locations to visit. It is a community resource to support further networking and collaboration. It also helps to make visible the importance of this sector for so many of our community members.

The information we have gathered here is a resource for visitors and newcomers to the region, as much as it is for residents. We hope it will encourage people to visit local venues and businesses, connect with local groups and learn about the work of local artists, musicians and performers.

A list of public artworks are included here too, a trail within the trail, representing creative community initiatives over many years. There are also two sites of special cultural significance for the Nyungar community listed. These are part of the Mandaboornap story and are located at Cape Le Grand.

With this project we also launch Esperance Community Arts’ new logo, designed by Jennell Reynolds and Kate Dansey. The six coloured figures represent the six Nyungar seasons, an acknowledgment that we live and work on Nyungar Country. These figures also represent the six core artforms we work with regularly in Esperance (music, dance, writing, visual arts & crafts, theatre and photography & film).

Our new logo celebrates the diversity in our community and the value of working together.

Esperance Community Arts’ primary role is to partner with arts groups, individual artists and local organisations on accessible community projects that engage people from a wide range of backgrounds across multiple artforms. Our projects take place in locations all around Esperance and have a focus on health and wellbeing and community development. We work in close partnership with Aboriginal community organisations and with Escare Incorporated.

Esperance Community Arts has consistently promoted the value of arts and culture within our community for 20 years, thanks to core funding provided by state and local government, and to individual project funding. The relationships and networks developed over this time are crucial to the community-building work that we do.

We constantly welcome new partnership opportunities and we hope that the Esperance Arts & Culture Trail will open the way for a variety of new collaborations and connections.

Thank you to all the arts groups, arts businesses, community organisations and individual practitioners who have contributed to the Trail.

We will continue to add listings to the Esperance Arts and Culture trail website as our arts network continues to grow.
